Educational conference.

Honolulu, Aug. 13.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of Stanford University, in an address here last night before the Pan-Pacific Educational Conference, declared that no nation ever gained anything by the sword which it did not later lose by the sword. He cited as examples Prussia and France during the time of Napoleon.

Prussia and France during the Mapoleon.
Dr. Jordan, who is president of the Educational Conference, made a plea for disarmament. He urged peace between all countries through an educational understanding and a mutual appreciation.
Dr. Jordan cited the United States and Canada as the best example of neignbor nations which are on-friendly terms.

Professor M. Anesaki, of the University of Tokio, who was another speaker, urged that a co-operative psychological investigation be made of the principal racial traits of the people of the Occident and the Far East for the purpose of establishing points of contact for the harmonizing relations.

Dr. Y. B. Tsai, Chancellor of Peking University, expressed the belief that succident is the panacea for the illis of humanity.

Dr. Tsai Suggested that the definite aim of the education conference should be to locate the common ground on which the Occident and the Far East could meet without any fundamental conflict of ideals.

Dr. R. Brumfield About to Be Taken from Calgary

Calgary, Aug. 13.—Suffering from the great strain which has worn him down since his arrest by Calgary city police and Royal Canadian Mounted Police at noon Friday on a charge of nurder. Dr. Richard M. Brumfield, wanted in Roseburg, Oregon, had to be given medical attention at police headquarters to-day. He had not slept throughout the night and was extremely nervous, his voice being scarcely audible when he attempted to speak to the police. "Send my love to my wife and children and tell them everything will be all right," was Brumfield's only remark when questioned by a Canadian Press reporter if he had any message to send home. Outside of that the prisoner refused to make any statement whatever. Friday night he stated he would tell everything to the district-attorney at Roseburg when he returned.

On the morning of July 14 the wrecked and partially burned automobile of Dr. Brumfield, a dentist, of Roseburg, Oregon, was found a short distance from Roseburg, where the car had apparently crashed down an embankment. Beneath the automobile was a maimed and burned body which a coroner's jury later identified as that of Dennis Russell, a laborer, whom Dr. Brumfield was alleged to have engaged to blow out stumps. The head was missing, having been blown from the body by dynamite which the dentist was known to have purchased for blasting stumps. Dr. Brumfield's wife positively identified the body as that of her husband, but Sheriff S. W. Starmer stuck to the theory that Russell was the victim and continued to maintain an active search for Brumfield.

ONTARIO RAILWAY PLAN CONDEMNED

Commission Reports Against Hydro Radial Scheme

Toronto, Aug. 13.—The system of radial railways which the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario proposed to construct at a cost of about $45,000,000 is declared by a majority of the Sutherland investigating commission, which sat 112 days and took 13,376 pages of evidence to be "unwise and economically unsound." The commission calls attention to the uncertain future of radial enterprises in this country and the United States, and also to the fact that several of the radial lines proposed would parallel lines of the Canadian National Railway.

A' less gloomy pronouncement is found in the mingrity report signed by Fred Bancroft, the remaining member of the commission. He accepts the estimates of the Hydroselectric Commission engineers that the radials would be self-supporting and recommends that an early start be made on construction work.

He charged that the main hindrance to international control of the traffic lay in the refusal of the United States Government to co-operate in the movement becase it was sponsored by the League of Nations.

KEEPING OF LIQUOR COSTLY IN U. S.

Seizures Create Problem For Washington Government

Washington Government

Washington, Aug. 13.—An overstocked national booze cellar that nobody knows how to empty is one of the unusual heritages of Uncle Sam under the prohibition law.

The anomalous story of how, in a land of drought, liquor obtained by confiscation has become a white elephant on the hands of the Government was told to the Cabinet yesterday by Attorney-General Daugherty, arousing a discussion which led nowhere except to a decision to investigate further.

The Attorney-General told his colleagues and the President that large sums of much-needed Government funds were being eaten up in storage house rentals and policing expenses to keep liquor that the Government did not want. An even greater conomic waste would result from pouring the seized spirits into the sewer, and it was suggested that a way might be found to extract the alcohol for commercial purposes of to turn the liquor itself over to some legitimate use. The law says "it is to be confiscated." but does not say how to dispose of it.

Another prohibition enforcement question that interested the Cabinet yesterday arose from the seizure of liquor not intended for consumption in the United States, but merely in transit in bond through this country. Cabinet members asked whether there was not some way to secure release of such shipments, but was told that nothing could be done until the courts had ruled on several cases of seizure now pending. Should the seizure be held legal it is not impossible that the Attorney-General may ask Congress to change the law.

Among the temperance organizations arranging Mr. Johnson's itinerary are said to be some of the most civic life of India. The various native religions of India are what may be termed "prohibition religions." While native liquors are made and a great extent even among many of the people whose religious tenets are opposed to the use of intoxicants, the temperance forces of India say they must combat the operations of the drink traffic, which is largely in the hands of foreigners.

What Does The Word "Mutual" Mean?

NY company that issues profit-bearing A policies is said by some writers to be mutual, because a part of the surplus is returned to the policyholders. These companies are really "mixed" companies—partly stock and partly mutual. Shareholders absorb some of the profits, though the major portion goes to the policyholders.

Distinct from such companies is the purely mutual organization. A purely mutual company has no shareholders and is managed as a strictly co-operative concern. Every dollar of the assets belongs to the policyholder. Every dollar of the surplus is returned to the policyholder.

Canada's Only Mutual

The only Canadian old line life company operating on a purely mutual basis is The Mutual Life of Canada. This company was originated fifty-one years ago for the purpose of supplying its members with life insurance at actual cost. To achieve that aim it was made purely mutual.

Yale University, who is probable most experienced and best qual lified authority on American University affairs, says "We need not so much an increase in beneficiary funds, as an increase of the opportunities for students to earn a living." He wisely adds "Ald in education, if given without exacting a corresponding return, becomes demoralizing. But if such aid is earnead by the student as he goes, it has just the opposite effect."

We should profit by such sound advice, especially now that it is evident from our embryo university experience, that we are adding to our present and future difficulties by giving away much more "free education" at our university than we can afford; and what is worse, wasting too much of it upon some who do not seem likely to put it to the best public service.

By all means let the poor man's son of ability have equal opportunity to develop the best that is in him. To facilitate that, may I suggest the advisability of raising the standard of entrance and inter-term examinations to weed out the less efficient students, and thus make room for the abier ones available from those seeking admission.

In some of the best English Higher Schools, the authorities rightly require the wealthier families to pay higher fees for their children, to enable the deserving students from poorer families to receive equal op-pay higher fees for their children, to enable the deserving students from poorer families to receive equal opportunities at reduced rates. We could with greater advantage improve upon that system (which has worked admirably), by giving free or partly free scholarships to limited numbers of High School scholars whose work proved that they were worthy of being admitted on encouraging terms to the university. To encourage those worthles further, it would be wise statesmanship on the part of this Province to offer reasonable bonuses to such students as during their vacations took up useful work, or worked their way through the university by earning during inter-terms; because this Province needs workers with developed brains to ennoble work, and rise above those ignoble flutterers our too free system is producing to look down upon work as "infra dig." What a glorious encouragement would result if our Education Department would, for example, give $25 scholarships to entrants who scored $29 per cent. by examination: $50 to those scoring $20 per cent.; and $75 to those who won $20 per cent. with $25 cents per mark between to be just to all?

That incentive would inspire all scholars in every High School and quickly raise the standard of education throughout British Columbia.

the taking of the inventory of the valuables in the Chapels by the Gov-ernment was at its height. That was about 1908 (or was it earlier?) The time since a certain happening is almost always greater than we think. At a table near was a fussy woman with a little girl about five and a boy, maybe six, evidently habitues. At another table was a calm-faced woman with a boy about the same age. While we were gaing, the crowd of supporters of the Church against the State swept by, filling the Boul Miche from shopfront to shopfront, a seething mass of excited humanity shrieking "Lib-ar-te," "Lib-ar-te," Many of the customers jumped to their feet, some fled to the rooms behind. The children of the fussy woman started to gct down from their chairs; she screamed at them to sit still but they jumped down and ran for protection to the waiter, a monument of smiling lard. The other boy dropped his spoon and looked at his mother in alarm. She laid her hand upon his and said quietly, "It is all right, Dearie, there's nothing to fear." He immediately picked up his spoon again. When the shouting had died away he looked at his mother with a proud look. He knew she had been mistress of the situation where the other had failed. You could see that quite plainly. On compilmenting her she replied, "One must keep children's nerves from being frayed or they have little chance of becoming big men or women later." Yes, there must be a common-sensed mother in the background, for apart from general mental and physical quelelyment, there is the protection of the dark, fear of a hard, unsympathetic parent, or of undue physical punishment. The child that lies awake much in fear has no chance of

There is a well-known process by which one of the Indian tribes on the Amason is able to shrink the skin of the scalp and face of a dead person after the skin has been removed from the skull. These repulsive objects can sometimes still be bought of curio vendors. There is no process in Peru or elsewhere that I know of, by which bone is shrunk. I merely mention this as showing a distortion of facts.

In summing up, the lady in question adds that "Peru is no place for white women who have to earn their living," and she was "heartily glad to return to civilization." May I say that far from being a place from which one is "glad to return to civilization." bims is a modern and up-to-date city with a delightful social life that many far larger cities might well envy and where Spanish traditions of culture and charm have been handed down unbroken for over three hundred years. Industrially and agriculturally Peru is advancing rapidly and offers many inducements to foreigners, men and women, who go there to make their living.

Lastly, Peru is fortunate in having at her head as president, His Excellency Senor A. B. Leguia, a gentleman who has a brilliant executive and administrative ability and who during his many years' residence in Lon-administrative ability and who during his many years' residence in London, has made the study of industrial and political development the main interest of his life. Mr. Leguia is a loyal friend of Great Britain; his son fought in the Royal Air Force during the war, and the President is in the happy position of being able to apply the best that he has gathered of European Government to administer an already highly developed and civilized country.

I must ask your leniency if I have beel tedious, but it seems a pity that now when Great Britain is striving her utmost to further friendly relations with South America any misstatements of facts, should be allowed to appear in the press. If every member of the Legis lature were to press the Govern ment to do everything every eonstituency wanted at time there would soon be a few vacant portfolios and a crop of advertisements calling for men who would undertake an at tempt to perform the impossible

In public discussions which bear upon the forthcoming disarmament Conference there should be no quibbling on the subject of votes. The success of the gathering is dependent upon a settlement and agreement in respect of the tremendous issues involved that may be reached by common consent. For this very obvious reason representation of the British Dominions may be regarded more in the nature of an advisory counsel not alone to the delegation from Great Britain but similarly to the representatives from the invited states and to the host nation across the-way. As long as the participants meet with a common object the inevitable goodwill and desire for a real salve for much of the world's troubles will do the rest.

rounded has been filled up, and the acclivities of the ramparts have been planted as a public walk.

Caerphilly Castle. This castle has the most remarkable leaning tower of any in Great Britain, indeed in proportion to its height, it is much more inclined from the perpendicular than any other in the world of which any account can be found, for it is between 70 and 80 feet high and 11 feet out of perpendicular. It rests only on part of its south side, principally by the strength of its coment, the manner of making which is almost, or I might say, quite unknown to present day masons. The singularity of its position is best observed from the inside, or from the moat immediately underneath it, from whence the effect of the apparently falling mass is very extraordinary. There seems to be a difference of opinion as to the founder, some claiming that it was built by De Bryce, a powerful Norman, who married the daughter of Llewelyn Ap Jorwerth, the son-in-law of King John, and the most warlike of all the Welsh princes, and others claim that it was built by one of the De Clares, Earls of Gloucester, and Hereford, in the reign of Henry III., and that large additions were made to it by Hugh le Despenser, the younger, who garrisoned it for Edward II. in the last year of his reign.

Long wings of brownish color reach from the shoulders almost to the ground by the Weish and then the control of the tower alluded to so the licitation of the tower alluded to, is not a little singular. The unfortunate King Edward II, and his favorites, the Spencers were here besieged by the forces of the Queen, and many powerful barrons, A.D. 1326. The defence was soing and ably conducted; and the besiegers were particularly annoyed by metal in a melted state, being throw down on them, which was heated in furnaces still remaining at the foot of the tower; during their prominent front tower the prominent front teeth. from war wounds.

The Prince, who comes of a long line of Italian nobility, first became acquaited with his future bride at Poikestone, where she nursed him through a serious liness.

The bride wore a dress of cream charmeuse, and the bridegroom, a tall, well-built, military looking figure, was dressed in a blue lounge suit and a bowler hat.

The honeymoon will be spent in Switzerland.

The honeymon will be spent in Switzerland.

This marriage of the heir of the great Lialian princely house to an Englishmowman makes the third union of the kind in three generations. The young man's mother, who for so many years was the head of Roman society, and whose causeries at the Palazzo Doria on the Corso, and parties at the Villa Famphili-Doria on the hither side of the Tiber will always be remembered, was a Petham-Clinton, and a daughter of the ducal house of Newcastle. Her predecessor a the palace and the villa was inkewise a great social figure in her time. She was formerly Lady Mary Talbot and daughter of the then Earl of Shrewbury and Talbot.

heralded photo-drama, will be own for the last time to-day at the Royal Victoria Theatre.

The story deals with a dual rol

It shows first a little orphan-asylum girl who becomes an actress and impersonates her own mother, by whom she was deserted in infancy, and who is so dissipated that she cannot fulfill her New York engagement.

Sensationally dramatic scenes in London's Limehouse district, glimpses of Bachanalian parties in fashionable London apartment houses, studies of the slums in both New York and London and refreshing views of small town life with a pleasing comedy relief, tend to 'emphasize the dramatic force of the story and give it an interesting change of locale.

Stuart Paton directed "Reputation" from Lucien Hubbard's screen adaptation of Edwina Levin's story, "False Colora." A cast of popular favorites was assembled for the principal supporting roles.

The big army of William S. Hart fans have cause to rejoice! Their favorite is coming in another virile vehicle in which his fistic ability is displayed to the atmost. The new Paramount starring vehicle is The Whistle, a ratting story of life in a manufacturing town in New England. It will be shown at the Dominion Theatre all this week. Mr. Hart has, the role of a mill foreman who fights for the rights of the mill, and for protection against accidents, and when his own son is killed in an unguarded shafting, he plans vengeance against his negligent employer. He saves the child of the mill owner from drowning and disappears with the infant whom he rears as his own son in order to "make him jump at "the sound of the whistle." But when a good woman, the mother of the boy, enters his life, his scheme is abare leading. The big army of William S. Hart the Princess Theatre, and it compares favorably with any production yet stage by the Mildred Page Players. Miss Page in the lead is playing a difficult part with such complete understanding of the clever lines and situations that one is bound to realize it cost many hours of earnest study and preparation, but when the result is so perfectly satisfactory it must make all the time spent in study seem well spent indeed. James Coots as her misunderstood husband has a good part and player to well and sings two ballads in splendid style, one being "The Dreamer."

Byron Aldenn in the character lead is making the most of the splendid opportunity afforded for real acting. Miss Lisle as his wife is also good, and looks charming. Lee Jaxon as the young lover, is doing his usual good work and singing some dandy numbers. Lilly Proley Lines Wall.

Hansen Gives Grand Twirling Exhibition

Big Right-Hander Let Beavers Down With Four Scattered Hits; Toyed With Visitors In Ninth to Show Fans What He Could Do; Hansen Also Led With Willow, Getting Triple, Double and Single.

Victoria, 6; Vancouver, 0.

Elmer Hansen's head and arm were too much for the Beavers last night and they suffered their first shut-out of the series. Not only did the manager make the Beavers look as helpless as a bunch of children from a kindergarten, but with his trusty bat he paved the way for the further annihilation of Bill Purtell and Company. Hansen had the honor of leading both teams with the willow, smacking out three hits in four trips to the plate. His first blow was a triple, the next a single and the third a double. He scored two runs and drove in one.

Hansen started out as if he wanted

Hansen started out as if he wanted a no-hit-no-run game and he might have got away with it had not Messner and Shoots allowed a fly ball to drop safe in right field. Yakima Wins Again.

Scratch Hits.

In the sixth Rachac got away with a scratch hit that Patton fielded fast but failed to get to first in time to cut him out of a hit. Church got the Beavers third safety in the eighth with a slow roller to short. Jimmy lists beat the throw by inches.

Hansen played with the Beavers in the ninth. Wiggins the first man up secured the only sound blow during the game. He hit a fast curve ball to right. Hansen then purposely walked M. Purtell and Wilson filling the bases. The passes sent Wiggins slong to third. He was the only Beaver to reach that pillow in the whole nine innings. Hansen then showed some flossy twirling and got the first three med in smart fashion.

Purtell popped out to Messner and Beable street out and then read the popped out to Messner and Beable street out and then read the popped out to Messner and Beable street out and then read the process of W. Purtell popped out to Messner and Boelzle struck out and then received orders from Umpire Held to leave the park immediately. "Bo" did not like the calls made by "Red." Anfinson then hit a feeble roller to Messner for the third out.

A Fine Performance.

Hansen's performance was one of the best seen here this year. He was accorded perfect support by his team-mates, who made several sen-sational plays in the field. Engle robbed Wilson of a hit in the sixth by picking his hard drive off the boards in centre field, and Patton made a wirelying nick, up of Church's Marquis was trotted out by Purtell to show the Hansen boys something in the shape of nice right-handed pitching. He did show something—a whole lot of wildness. Messner, the first man up, walked on the first four balls pitched and Dempsey worked Marquis for another free ticket. Handley then layed down a sacrifice and Manager Purtell decided that the moment had arrived for Marquis to seek the dugout. Rachac, the only member of the pitching staff whose arm does not require a cast, tried to arm does not require a cast, tried to swing the tide back in favor of the Beavers but he was helpless. Victoria is expected to do well in the series, as it has several very strong teams entered. The Five C's and Victoria, the present leaders of the Victoria, the present leaders of the Victoria and District Cricket League, are entered and are at present favorites for the honors, although one cannots afford to overlook the Olbs, of Vancouver,

Several of the local teams have been strengthened for the series. The Army, and Nary has secured the assistance of most of the leading players on the Garrison, while the Wanderers, a new aggregation, is headed by Hubert Letherby and ismade up mostly of Albion players. Major Cobbett, the Garrison's star batsman, will appear in the Imcognine-up. He agreed to play with this team before he knew of the intention of the Garrison to join with the Army and Navy veterans.

The Five C's will be at full strength and are counting strongly upon the ability of Wilkinson and Laurence, their star howlers, to carry them to victory.

"Giddy" Goward will lead the Victoria club, and he is counting strongly upon his batsmen to keep the trophy in this city.

GRACE JOHNSTON

Secretary of Women's Independent Political Association Passed Away

spital this morning of Mrs. Grace nd widow of the late William John-ton, of this city and New Wastminster.

Mrs. Johnston's health had been falling for the past six months, and on Tuesday she suffered a serious relapse, gradually sinking on her removal to the hospital. She was 48 years of age. A native of Windsor, England she came to Victoria some thirty years ago as a young girl, and in the intervening years she has lived at Nanaimo, New Westminster and Vancouver, returning to Victoria in 1910 after her husband's death.

Mrs. Johnston possessed considerable musical talent, and was for a lefigthy period organist at Queen's Avenue Methodist Church. New Westminster, and at other chirches. She also had great taste as an artist and handicraft worker, and was a frequent exhibitor at the various exhibitions in Coast cities.

Of late years she has taken a keen interest in public afafirs, particularly municipal matters, and had been for the past two years secretary of the Women's Independent Political Association of Victoria.

Mrs. Johnston is survived by one son, George W. Johnston, of Vernon, and a small daughter at home. She leaves two brothers and three sisters, Frank C. Berridge, of this city, and Funeral Chapel.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR SOLDIER-BROTHER OF DR. R. L. FRASER

Tuesday afternoon. The late soldier was born in Kincardine, Ontario, and was a resident of Victoria for some time before leaving for Union Bay a few. Pears age to enter the employment of Fraser & Horne, general merchants and hotel proprietors. John Fraser being his brother.

He enlisted for overseas with the B. C. Horse and saw considerable service, and the disabilities incurred through service were undoubtedly contributory to his early demise.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. Fallis, t. M.S. at the Sixth Avenue Methodist Church, and Rev. T. C. Colwell, M.C., of Alert Bay, the latter a school friend of the deceased. The pallbearers were Leonard C. Gill, George Drysdale, Capt McLellen, J. W. Baird, Robert Christie and Capt. T. R. R. Hoggan, his former officer in France. Interment took place in the soldiers plot at the Mountain View Cemetry!

Market improves.

The decision of the Canadian Western Fuel Company to re-open these two mines reflects a recent improvement in the coal market. The domestic market for Island coal particularly has improved of late. For some months the market was such that British Columbia coal mines generally speaking have been operating on a part-time basis, although Notices have been sent ahead to the various districts asking that meetings be arranged for parents. Leachers and any others likely to be interested in Sunday School work, so that Miss West may address them. Where there are no Sunday Schools permission is being asked from the trustees for the use of the day schools for addresses to the children. There will also be talks around the van for the youngsters and Miss West is anxious to get into touch with any children who live too far away to attend Sunday School. So that they may be invited to Join the Home Department of "The Sunday School Post."

The travellers expect to be away two months on this trip, stopping two or three days in each place. They will travel west to Plapot, south to East End and back to Regina, going south of the main line. They expect to visit Caron, Mortlach, Waldeck, Swift Current, Guil Lake, Tompkins. East End, Shaunavon, Cadilac, Anerold, Hazelmore, Assinibola, Weyburn, Milestone and Wilcox. Later they will make a similar trip to the north. TIMELY WARNINGS TO THE YOUNG FOLKS

Two warnings are in season this week. the first that of care with fire, and the other in connection with flying kites. This is perhaps the hottest period of the Summer and all grass in the vacant lots of the city has been well dried out by the kindly rays of the sun. A match, a spark from an engine, or many other causes, would speedily set fire to whole fields of dry grass. It is not likely that any of our little readers would be guilty of lighting such a fire, but they can at least help to

If you see smoke from any place that suggests fire notify the nearest person you can find, and then see what you can do to help. Grass fires at this time of year are very dangerous, and many houses have been partially destroyed from this source alone.

The city police recently drew the attention of children to the fact that kite

To Tommy's Pup

"Do unto others as you would they probably been told to every little girl and boy the world over. It is a principle that might well-be carried all through life, not only for the use and guidance of younger folks, ninety. It is seldom, in the excitement of the moment, that we remember what the simple words mean, and the little boy concerned would be very much surprised and hurt if the following phantasy took had been given to him when it was about three weeks old. It was then a fat, and affectionate little creature, with the most wonderful pair of brown eyes that ever dog possessed. Tommy was a kind child by nature, but not over thoughtful as to the care and consideration due to others.

He was "all boy" and very often, as most boys will, did things on the impulse of the moment. It was after a long and happy day in the woods, where his family had taken him for a pienic that Tommy had this nightmare. Discussing things afterwards Tommy was inclined to think he had eaten a little more than was good for him, but be that as it may, this is than something picked him up by the broad of his middle section and held him high in the air, with his arms and legs hanging, and his head downwards. He protested and cried out, but that did not seem to do any good at all, indeed if any thing the result was worse than before, for he was now lowered nearer to the ground, and made to walk on his two hands with his head still dangling, and his body held upside down. He was gripped around the middle section and his egs were held painfully tight by some thing he could not see. In this fashion he was made to walk along, if you could eall it walking at all, until his arms be came so tired that he fell on his head and his legs, were pushed down on top of all.

After a moment he got himself untangled and started to get away from the scene of these queer proceedings, when a loud ing back "and continued to slink away.

Suddenly what appeared to him to be a good-sized tree fell on his back, thrown from behind. The pain was terrible, and flying within the city limits, except in public parks, is prohibited. Kite flying 'rage'' just now, and it is fine sport, but be sure that you do not fly your kites on any street in the city. If you live near a public park go there for your kite flying.

The reason for this is easy to find. There are many wires overhead on telephone poles and electric light and power poles. A kite string may be the means of pulling down a wire carrying a heavy electric current, or even a telephone wire, and causing it to scrape other wires; if this happens, in many cases fire is the result. So from a small beginning great fires may be spread and destroy property and life. There are plenty of parks in the city, and plenty of room on the beaches for kite flying. To have the best fun with kites a free open space is ne-

"I bet he can swim," said a voice. "I bet he can't," cried another, and a discussion seemed to be under way. Soon he was taken up again and thrown, and as he was about to brace himself for the shock he fell into a cold and terrifying substance, that he had never seen before He opened his mouth to cry and swallowed a vile tasting liquid, while his eyes, cars, and throat were smarting with the acidity of the salt water, for that is what it was. He had been thrown into the sea.

Tommy struggled and struggled, and a voice from the bank cried, "See, I told you he could not swim," to be followed by another, "He is not swimming; he will drown if you don't pick him up. himself felt that he could not keep up this struggle much longer, and had just swallowed an extra large dose of the evil tasting water when he felt himself pulled up by one leg.

The joy of being rescued somewhat took away from the pain of being lifted by one leg, and Tommy was soon on dry land. At this stage Tommy felt himself seized again and was plumped down in front of a ferocious looking man, and told he had to "fight or be licked." Tommy did not like the prospect and howled as much; but it was no use, everytime he got his head away he was forced back. until at last he was thrown right on top of the man, and, then he woke up.

His puppy was lying curled at his feet, and wore an expression as much as to say, Well, and how did you like it? That is the way you treat me, you know." Though it was but a nightmare, Tommy, profiting by his own experience, treated his puppy dog very much better and learned in after life to treat others with at least as much kindness as he wished they would show to himself.

Walrus Versus Bear in Northern Wilds

Through the bravery of Arctic explorers, and other men of daring, the world is given an insight into the habits of many of the animals that spend their lives within the rigor of the Arctic circle

The ice bear, or polar bear as he is usually called, (ursus maritimus) is a lone hunter of the northern wilds that is well worthy of his reputation for cunning and stealth.

He, when full grown, attains a length of nine feet, and stands four feet in height, with a tremendous weight, His paws are half webbed. He can swim at the rate of three miles an hour, and may dive for considerable periods at a time. His neck is longer than the ordinary brown bear of our woods, but otherwise he is much the same except in habits. His hair is long and almost silky, and of a rather dirty white in color. The follow ing farrative, which is a true one, will give an insight into the daily drama that attends his hunt for food in the far north-

One day a party of explorers, on board a ship that was frozen in the ice, saw a walrus rise from the surface of a pool in an air pocket of the ice field, and crawl up on the ice. He rolled about for a time

Where Nature Plays Kitchen Ware With Every Wave

A sight of great interest to all who have seen it is what is known as "The Souffleur" or the Blower, in the Mauritius. This presents the magnificent sight of a large column of water being shot up into the air to a height of fully sixty feet, and is accompanied between waves by a humming noise that can be heard at a distance of several miles.

The Blower gets its name from its action and appearance, but is nothing more or less than a cave worn by the ac tion of the sea underneath the surface of the rock through which it has cut. The rollers ride in from the sea and pound their way into this cave and then are forced upwards through a large vertical shaft that has been worn by the sea in a flaw in the rocky formation.

The walls of these cylinders have been worn round and smooth and each succeeding wave rushes upwards and is shot out into the air in a sixty foot column of hissing water. The sight is one to be long remembered. As the water recedes the vacuum left by the retreating water, which sinks rapidly, makes a loud humming sound that is a well known feature of this portion of the Mauritius.

In the Skerries, one of the Shetland group of islands, a similar sight is to be seen, where a vertical vent to a subterranean cave throws a column of water high in the air in the middle of the island with each succeeding wave, at certain tides. This, too, has a sound that can be readily distinguished a long way off.
Thus Nature in some places imitates the blowing of a whale, and in this connec tion many queer, legends are told of the strange blowing rocks of the oceans of the world, the inhabitants holding rather superstitious views of the strange phe-

Tiny Lanterns of the Sea

If you have gone down to the seashore at night you cannot have failed to have seen the beautiful sight of phosphorescence, the sparkling gleam that is imparted to every motion of the water, as t laps upon the beach, or flows around the rocky points. This gleaming silver sheen is caused, as perhaps you know, by a large number of little (very little) animalcules. They belong, some to one, sometimes to another, branch of the very large family of "infusoria," which is the name given to these strange creatures as

In tropical and semi-tropical oceans these strange creatures make the water at night a mass of blinding silver, and are seen in very long stretches of narrow breadth, giving the appearance of long waving sheets of silver wending their way on the surface of the water. Of scarcely hair's breadth in thickness, the in fusoria, three hundred in number stretched tail to tail, would scarcely span an inch of length, so small are they,

Often it is possible to see large fish chasing smaller fry through the medium of these enlightening animalcules. The bold and racing salmon is seen to attack a shoal of little fry and to go "galumping with a quantity in his open maw. The swirl of the salmon's tail is even evident, as he propels himself along at top speed in search of his late supper. Wherever salt water is disturbed at night by motion of any nature, the surface. which is inhabited by these little creatures, gives off a phosphorescent gleam that is unmistakably beautiful all the world over.

In tropical oceans the effect is very much heightened with a more brilliant class of infusoria, and has on land the strange analogy of the fire-fly, which wings its gleaming way under hedgerows like little fairy lanterns carried by hobgoblins in carnival.

and then settled at full length for a sleep. That it was an "one-eyed" sleep will be seen shortly.

A polar bear, that had been watching his movements from afar approached the opposite side of the pool, very gradually, and lay down to roll. That he was rolling with a purpose in view began to be evident to the human watchers of the drama, for every turn would bring him a few inches nearer the supposedly sleep-rolling and stretched himself at full length on the ice, feigning sleep.

The walrus, also a cunning brain in the northern game of a life for a life, pretended to be satisfied and lay down again. That he was still suspicious developed when the bear made one great spring at his projected dinner, but the one-eyed sleeper escaped and dived straight into the pool. The human watchers, who had taken a keen delight in the clever stalking efforts of the polar bear, were roused to sympathy when they heard his very distinctive grunt of disappointment at missing a meal that would have un doubtedly lasted him for a whole week.

"The Pot says I'm black," mourned the Kettle complainingly, "and I don't see why I have forever to be listening his slurs and slanders; besides I'm not black, I was a fine blue-grey until the cook put me on top of the stove without the lid on; such a crazy thing to do. sang out for help but nobody came and only escaped being burned because they wanted hot water-

Well, why worry? You are black, but there, what does it matter, you sing cheerily about your work, and you work uncomplainingly as long as you are fed, comforted the Dish Cloth.

"As for you, Pot, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," continued the Dish Cloth to the sulky saucepan. "Why, to hear you talk, one would think you were all aluminum, and new at that. Why, we all know you are as old as the hills, and were bought second-hand at that. You never sing as you work, you grumble and bubble about nothing at all. Your hat is never on straight by any

At this the Kettle began to purr contentedly, and presently broke into a lilting ballad of old times. The Pot slunk back into its place on the farthest hole of the stove, and kept up a dreary mumble that no body listened to, or paid the slightest attention to anyway.

The Dish Cloth, thoroughly pleased with the effect of his arbitration, hung himself out on the line for an airing The sun cast loving rays of warmth on its spotless white, and the soft Summer breeze fanned its fringe, now thinning with age. It was an optimist, and there-fore ruled in the kitchen. Sometimes it would be wet with the tears of the kitchen ware, but never of its own. It was always happy, and it loved best of all to silence the grumbly old Pot that complained from morning to night, about and that and every only a Dish Cloth, but it had sense enough to know that, and was a universal favorite. The Knives were always saving cutting things, or tore bluntly through the tender places of others. The Forks were always making pointed remarks about their fellows scandal-mongers these forever telling about the dreadful doings of the Spoons. The plates were cracked anyway, and so no-body paid any attention to them, but all were afraid of the Dish Cloth, for if they won its displeasure they would be left to dry in the cold night wind, and would suffer the agonies of rheumatism in consequence. The Dish Cloth did more work than all, and was the most cheerful, for the Dish Cloth had been cut square, and was clean in all things.

Some of the local members had the pleasure of an interview with the two boys from the Naval Brigade who were on the Canadian Exporter when she struck a sand bank in American waters. These were both from Vancouver, and did not train in the local brigade. The boys who went through their first trying experience of being shipwrecked behaved very well in the trying time and added additional lustre to the honor of the Naval Brigade in the West.

Twice a week the local division parades at the Ship's Office, where seamanship in its many branches is taught in the elementary stages. The boys, under their instructors, have made many clever devices to assist in this training and a visit to the Ship's Office is an interesting experience that gives a keen insight to the quality of the excellent training accorded to the boys.

Are you of an inventive turn of mind, or have you ever thought about the many little things that the great world needs to speed up its lagging business, in some particular or other? The simplest of inventions have been turned to great account in commerce, where the idea was to do with something that was needed by all people, frequently. Some inventions have been so simple that one is surprised they were not thought of before, and in deed some could hardly be called inventions at all, but are merely contraptions to do this or that with principles already well known to the world.

As far as invention is concerned, it is in the mechanical world that pure invention gets its main field of usefulness. There are so many hundreds of different types of machines to accomplish one thing and another, that it is often found a simple device will be of the greatest use to one or other parts of these machines. This class of invention is most readily discovered by the mechanical worker, who is in touch with the various machines and has a knowledge of their uses and limita-

It is in the word "limitation" that the mainspring of inventive genius gets its chance, to make something possible that had not been possible before, by the use of some simple contrivance. There is the patent ink bottle from which ink will not leak even if it be turned upside down and shaken. There is the needle that threads itself and saves weary eyes the time and annovance of assaying the difficult procedure. The milk bottle with a patent top, that will not leak, and is prized for the condition in which it keeps the contents, guarding the milk from dirt in transit. All these little contrivances. simple in the extreme in themselves, but representing the ingenuity of a few who have given their minds to the work of inventing something that the world requires. It is not given to all of us to become inventors, in the higher sense of the world, but at least all may take note of how things are accomplished and seek for an easier and cheaper way of accomplishing the self same thing. One little boy, with the aid of an alarm clock, a set of electric batteries and an idea used to light the kitchen fire by the use of the time every morning. As the alarm unwound it turned the winding key at the rear of the clock, and dropped a spring lever down on to another electrical contact. which closed the circuit, The circuit comprised the batteries and a small pie of "paper-wire" between two terminals. When the current was flowing it heated the "paper-wire" (of high resistance) to a red heat and set fire to a fuse of black powder, which in turn travelled along a guide and fired the paper in the stove,

This idea was of no practical use to the boy, as the fire had to be set the night before, a fact that would disincline many to its use, and also the fact that gunpowder had to be used made the idea of little worth commercially. But the boy obtained plenty of fun with his experiment and lit "the family fire" for a fortnight before the experiment palled and

Why he can play the piano like a piano-player. He is going to college now." "Is he?" remarked his acquaintance not very much interested. ing devices in work about the house. Do You Ever-Say "I Don't Care?"

Did you ever hear the story of Tommy and the Lion? Well, if you have not, it is well worth learning now. Tommy was a growing lad of some six years, but very much inclined to be sulky when he did not get his own way. His favorite expression in these moments of sulkiness was. don't care." His mother would tell him that he "must have got out of the wrong side of the bed," or that he "had a crooked straw down his back" or some such expression, and all Tommy would reply was "I don't care."

It was in one of these strange moods of sulkiness that Tommy met a stranger on the road he was traversing. The man was in a desperate hurry and wanted Tommy to run with him, shouting that wild animals were loose and all should scatter as fast as might be. Tommy was not to be fooled by such childish talk, indeed no, he snorted indignantly, why everybody knew there were no lions about. The stranger told Tommy to run. You will be eaten up, if you don't curry," he warned him. "I don't care," barked Tommy, and repeated it louder, as the man ran off, "I don't care." "Who doesn't care?" asked a rough and terrifying voice that at the same time sounded like a lion roaring, yet the sound was intelligible. Tommy looked around and saw a lion. "What did you say?" roared the lion. "Did I hear you say there were no lions about?" "I don't care," said Tommy, very much frightened but speaking from force of habit, and he was immediately eaten up.

So whatever you may feel like saying, when you are inclined to be sulky, never say "I don't care," as that was the way that Tommy disappeared, and he was never heard of again.

DO YOU KNOW.

There are a number of things that every little boy and girl should know in respect to the neighborhood in which they live. How many of these inquiries could you answer if asked by a stranger in a great hurry?

Where is the nearest doctor, the nearest fire alarm, the nearest telephone, the shortest way to the city, by road and by street car. All should be acquainted more or less with the community in which they live—a range of knowledge that might save life in emergency one day.

As already stated, the sketch merely shows the route to be covered by the Association directors but Vancouver and Hope are connected by road as well as Princeton and Bridesville and if the link between Hope and Princeton were completed they would be able, on their return to tell the wonderful story of a motor tour almost entirely on British Columbia soil. The detour between Patterson and Cascade is already in course of being obviated by the construction of a highway section in the province between these two points.

land—and between there and Cascade—another gap occurs, necessitating a detour through United States territory but, as stated, the Provincial authorities have now under construction a direct road across this gap, which it is anticipated will be ready for travel early next Summer.

Proceedingly westerly through British Columbia from Cascade a splendid road exists as far as Princeton, but, in order to avail oneself of existing detours through Washington to reach the coast, it is necessary to leave the British Columbia highway at Bridesville, which is only half way, between Cascade and half way between Cuscade and Princeton and the entire remainder of the western tour must be made through the State of Washington.

And if a horse, why not a horseless carriage—if only there were the means? It was not vainglory, it was not the satisfaction of personal pride, but the desire, transmitted from a mechanically-minded parent, to possess a piece of machinery, and to use it in the duties to which God had called him.

A Secret Desire

For three or four years Abbe Gavois nourished this secret desire. The vision of a motor car he had seen at an exhibition in Paris haunted him; he enquired the price of new cars, and retired horrified. If only some rich amateur would consent to abandon a car for one-tenth its real value! In the town of Troyes, in the Champagne country, was discovered a motorist who offered a twin-cylinder Panhard-Levassor for £120. The amount was far beyond the means of the village cure; impossible of realization; but the desire persisted Distressed, the village priest took his trouble to the shrine of St. Antony of Padua, the patron of all the anxious, and for nine days prayed fervently.

MODEL YACHTS MORE MIGHT HAVE RACE TO-MORROW

Exciting Event Is Promised Over Cadboro Bay Course

The unusual sight of a number of model yachts skimming over the water at Cadboro Bay, the home of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, will be witnessed to-morrow when a number of trim miniature craft will compete for model salling honors.

The model salling classic will be a keenly contested affair as a number of entries have been made, including at least two new boats. The only conditions governing the race, as far is is known, provides that the entries be sloop or schooner rigged.

Ernest and Kenneth Adams, among the keenest of yachting enthusiasts, and Dick Bird, yacht builder, are entering miniature craft of their own design and build. The Adams's boys have been burning the midnight oil in an effort to get their craft completed, and the result is a couple of fine model sloops that should be contenders in the race.

If Dick Bird is unable to complete his model yacht in time for to-morrow's event, he proposes to challenge the winner.

George Roberts has entered a classy but mysterious craft with which he expects to out-sail anything in sight.

Another entry is being made by Leslie Bing. The race will be over a mile course and will be started at 1.30 p.m. A. Lindsay may be induced to accept the office of, judge.

Hon. J. H. King Outlines Policy of Works Department

Municipalities of the Province, if Municipalities of the Province, in they come to the Government seek-ing assistance for highways, must bear a fair share of the burden. Hon, J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, stated at the New Westminster Automobile. Club picnic at Crescent Beach Wednesday afternoon, when he addressed the members of the club and those of the beach who nad gathered on the shady side the bathing pavilion to listen to the speeches. But if municipalities the Government will not force expen ernment and municipalities in ac-cordance with the New Highway Act which classifies roads into primary secondary and municipal, and estab-lishes a basis of Government assist-ance of 25 to 50 per cent. respect-ively.

Auto License Fees.

The Minister also gave the assurance that the Government was faithfully observing the spirit of their agreement with the Good Roads-League that the returns from increased fees would be devoted permanent highway building. The Government had consolidated the money derived from automobile license fees and is devoting it to building permanent roads. He considered this a sound policy and that it would be productive of good results. Ninety miles of the highways being constructed or improved this year will be of a permanent nature. They realized that better road conditions were required and they were trying to meet the needs of the Province in this respect, but municipalities must bear their share of the cost.

The Minister also gave the assurance was several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.
